LOCAL - STATE NEWS

◆ THP ISSUING FEW TEXTING CITATIONS

It's been just over a year since the law banning texting while driving went into effect in Tennessee. Very few of those $50 tickets have been issued. So far in 2010, the Tennessee Highway Patrol has issued only 88 citations for texting while driving. State and local authorities say it's difficult to enforce the law because officers have to determine whether the driver is actually sending a text message or dialing a phone number.

◆ ATHENS TO HOST SMALL CITIES MEETING

Mayors, vice mayors, and city council members from 12 states will be in Athens this week to attend the annual meeting of the Small Cities Council of the National League of Cities. Athens Vice Mayor Bo Perkinson is the council's chairman and will serve as host of the event which begins tomorrow and continues through Saturday. Most of the sessions will take place at the Athens Regional Park Conference Center. Thursday night, the attendees will be treated to a BBQ dinner and fireworks show at Athens Regional Park. Saturday afternoon, the group will take a boat trip on Fort Loudon Lake. Between sessions, the delegates will also visit the Mayfield Dairy Farms Visitor Center, Keith Mansion Bed and Breakfast, and the McMinn County Living Heritage Museum.

NATIONAL-WORLD NEWS

◆ Undersea robots worked a mile beneath the Gulf of Mexico on Monday to lower a new tighter-fitting cap over BP's leaking oil well. BP hopes the new cap will finally stop the leak after nearly three months.

◆ Police in Albuquerque, New Mexico, say six people are dead, including the gunman, after a shooting at a solar and fiber optics manufacturing plant. Police say the shooting stemmed from a domestic dispute.

◆ A militia group linked to al-Qaida is claiming responsibility for the twin bombings in Uganda that killed 74 people watching the World Cup final. A former University of Delaware rugby player was among the victims; his brother was involved in a plane crash in N. Carolina.

◆ Wildlife officials in Naples, Florida, say a 10-foot alligator bit off an 18-year-old man's hand while he was swimming in a canal with friends. Officials managed to catch the gator and retrieve the hand from its stomach. Doctors hope they can re-attach his hand.

◆ Scientists report advances in detecting and predicting Alzheimer's disease. They also say there is more proof that getting enough exercise and Vitamin D may lower the risk for Alzheimer's.
