NATIONAL-WORLD NEWS

◆ Robert Dudley will be the first American to lead the oil giant BP. Dudley pledges that BP will remain committed to the Gulf region even after its leaking well is sealed. Meantime, BP reported a record quarterly loss of $17 billion.

◆ Cleanup crews in the Gulf of Mexico have one problem--they can't find any oil to clean up. The head of the U.S. spill response, Thad Allen, says he's trying to figure out where the oil is and what can be done about it. A lot of oil has been skimmed or burned off. Some experts say the oil has been broken down naturally by the elements and by microbes in the ocean.

◆ An audit says the U.S. Department of Defense cannot account properly for $8.7 billion of Iraqi oil and gas money meant for humanitarian needs and reconstruction after the 2003 invasion.

◆ The stock market's rally this week was chilled Tuesday by news that consumers are becoming more pessimistic. The Dow Jones Industrials Average closed at 10,537.69; up 12.26 points.

◆ In Denver, a runaway car crash is being blamed on a black bear. The bear apparently was attracted by the smell of a peanut butter sandwich and managed to open a car door, climb in, knock the gear stick into neutral, and send the car rolling down a hill into trees.
