◆ INGLESIDE STUDENTS SENT HOME-NO POWER

Students at Ingleside Elementary School in Athens got one more unexpected day of summer vacation Tuesday due to a power failure. There was a problem in the underground electrical cable that feeds Ingleside School. Athens Utilities Board crews could not dig to try to find the problem until the location of phone lines, gas lines, and other underground utilities in the area could be marked. As a result, school officials made the decision around 8:30 a.m. to cancel classes and send the students home. Ingleside School will be open today.

The Odd Side of the News

√ A customer at a North Carolina Krispy Kreme got some extra "dough" in his box of hot glazed doughnuts. Police say a clerk at the store accidentally handed over a box of doughnuts that also contained the store's cash receipts. The manager had put the cash in the doughnut box as a safeguard against theft.

√ Police have released a security video from a McDonald's in Ohio that shows a woman punching two restaurant employees and smashing a drive-thru window because she couldn't get Chicken McNuggets for breakfast. The woman, who claimed she was drunk, was sentenced to 60 days in jail and ordered to pay for the broken window.

√ A New York judge has granted bail for a JetBlue flight attendant accused of cursing out a passenger on the plane's public address system, grabbing some beer from the galley, and leaving the plane on an emergency escape slide. Police say Steven Slater lost his temper after a dispute with a passenger. He was charged with criminal mischief and reckless endangerment.
