◆ UNITED WAY KICKS-OFF 2013 CAMPAIGN

The 2013 United Way Campaign is officially underway after guest speaker Antone Davis inspired the crowd to make a difference in the life of others. The 2013 goal is $640,000 and about 50% of that total has already been raised or pledged. Davis is a former NFL and U.T. football player and lost 202 lbs. on NBC's "Biggest Loser" TV show. Davis, a former high school drop-out, is currently mentoring members of the U.T. Football team in a position called "VOL FOR LIFE". (Photo & story by Stephen Pell)

NATIONAL & WORLD NEWS

◆ White House Press Secretary Jay Carney, after insisting for more than a week that the White House had no evidence to suggest the deadly attack on the U.S. Consulate in Benghazi, Libya, was anything but a 'spontaneous' act, concedes that it was an act of terror.

◆ Two Chrysler workers at an assembly plant in Detroit are dead after an altercation in which one worker slit the throat of another, then shot himself to death nearby. Police say the two men have had a history of tension.

◆ A chain of hobby shops owned by Christians is the latest business to face a boycott from liberal organizers, after the company filed suit against the Obama administration over new requirements to provide insured employees with contraceptive and abortion coverage. Hobby Lobby filed the suit in U.S. District Court in Oklahoma City, alleging that the ObamaCare mandate violates the religious beliefs of the company's owners.

◆ Victims of Bernie Madoff's multi-billion-dollar Ponzi scheme will be receiving more of their stolen money back this week. The court-appointed trustee in charge of liquidating Madoff's investment firm said checks totaling $2.5 billion were mailed Wednesday.

◆ President Obama said the "most important" lesson he learned during his first term in the White House is that "you can't change Washington from the inside," a comment that prompted Mitt Romney to quip he intended to give Obama that chance on election day.
