NATIONAL & WORLD NEWS

◆ In every corner of the Egyptian capital, people are locked up in their homes at night under a military-imposed curfew. The curfew has been a shock to Cairo and the two-week-old military-backed government's curfew has slashed the typical Cairo 24-hour life to just 13 hours. Parents who were used to taking their children out for a midnight dinner, are no longer able to do so because of the curfew.

◆ Some schools around the country are dropping out of the healthier new federal lunch program after only one year. The schools are complaining that so many students turned up their noses at meals packed with whole grains, fruits and vegetables and that the cafeterias were losing money.

◆ In the first half of this year, government agents in 74 countries demanded information on about 38,000 Facebook users. Over half of the orders came from authorities in the United States. Facebook has been criticized for helping the National Security Agency secretly collect data on customers, and the social-networking giant is the latest technology company to release figures on how often governments seek information about its customers. According to federal law, the government has the authority to demand data without specific warrants, and while companies can fight requests in secret court hearings, it's an uphill battle.

Built Out of Legos!

THP GEARS UP FOR LABOR DAY

The Tennessee Highway Patrol will be out in force this Labor Day holiday weekend. A "No Refusal" enforcement campaign will take place in 11 counties, including McMinn and Meigs. "No Refusal" allows law enforcement officers to seek search warrants for blood samples in cases involving suspected impaired drivers. Last year, 12 people died in Labor Day weekend crashes.
