State and Local News

◆ THE "WASTER" ID'ed & CONTACTED

The "Waster" has been identified. He is Robert "Bob" Chapman (see photo) and is believed to be a resident of Monroe County. Chapman has been delivering copies of rambling handwritten letters referencing Isaiah 54:16, signed by "The Waster" to churches from Blount County and into North Georgia. The letters don't appear to be threatening, but with recent violence in other churches around the country, people were becoming concerned about them. McMinn County Sheriff Joe Guy and Monroe County Sheriff Tommy Jones say a McMinn County church captured Chapman's image and car on a surveillance camera. They say that he has been contacted by phone and doesn't appear to be a threat.

◆ THP WARNS TO WATCH OUT FOR DEER

Fall marks the start of the deer mating and hunting season, and it is the worst time of the year for deer-related crashes. Last year in Tennessee, there were 6,429 crashes involving deer, up 3.9% from 2013. One person was killed in a deer-related traffic crash last year. The THP advises you not to swerve to avoid hitting a deer.

◆ TENNESSEE NEWS HEADLINES

✓ Governor Haslam has sent letters to state lawmakers informing them that the state Health Department is now requiring physicians who perform abortions to document how the fetal tissue is disposed of. The change is in response to hidden-camera video that raised the question of whether Planned Parenthood officials were profiting from the sale of tissue from aborted babies.

✓ House Republican Caucus Chairman Glen Casada of Franklin wants the Tennessee National Guard to round up Syrian refugees who have settled in the state, and stop any others who might try to enter. Casada wants the refugees taken to federal Immigration and Customs Enforcement Centers. He says the Immigration officials should be told: "They're not coming to Tennessee, they're yours."
