Names Picked for Athens Schools

The new school building to be constructed where City Park Elementary School is currently located will actually house two different schools. The Athens School Board has decided to name one of them the Athens City Primary School and the other will be the Athens City Intermediate School. The primary school will be for grades Pre-K through second grade and the intermediate school will be for grades three through five. Each school will have its own principal and librarian. School Director Robert Greene says if you have two schools in the same building, the state will provide funding for two principals and two librarians. Ground breaking will be held soon for the first phase of the building, which will be the Pre-K through second grade school. When all construction is completed, there will be three schools in the same area-Athens City Intermediate, Athens City Primary, and the present Athens City Middle school.

PEOPLES BANK BUYS 2 CLOSED BANKS

Peoples Bank of East Tennessee has closed a purchase deal with CapStar Bank to buy two of CapStar's closed branches. Chris White, President & CEO of Peoples Bank, says one of the branches is located on South Congress Parkway in Athens and the other is on Highway 68 in Madisonville. The Madisonville branch is scheduled to open in January and the Athens office will open in April.
